

Subscribers to DSL are required to pay an additional 10% Federal USF fee, which is not charged by cable broadband providers. This does not promote reasonable access to broadband, or internet access in general. This 10% fee is charged in addition to the 10% already paid on ones phone lines, thus making DSL one of the highest taxed services available.